

- Should my paper follow

How should I format figures in my paper? Insert 3 single blank line spaces between a figure and the text of your paper. There must be one single blank line space between the figure and the caption. Captions should be single spaced, left justified or centered. Be consistent in formatting. The figure caption must appear below the figure. Figure captions should end with a period. Use the same size font as in the body of your paper. If your figure is too large to place on your page vertically, you may place it horizontally on the page. However, your page margin placement and page number placement must match the rest of your paper. If your figure is on the page with no text from the body of your paper it must be centered on the page. Depending on size, multiple figures may appear on the same page as long as they are separated by 3 blank line spaces. Multiple figures must appear vertically; they cannot be placed side by side.

- f* How should I format my Reference Section? There are online software products available for this purpose. A brief google search will result in many options. Also, the USA Library recommends Mendeley, which is free of charge. You may check with your department for suggestions as well.
- f* How should I format my Biographical Sketch? There are two acceptable formats, please consult the Thesis/Dissertation Guide
- f* Where can I find a sample thesis and more information? You can find a sample thesis and a detailed Thesis/Dissertation Guide on our webpage
- f* If I am having problems with my paper, are there resources for me on campus? USA has a Writing Center. The English Language Center is also available and the USA Library is an excellent resource.
- f* Before I turn my Thesis or Dissertation in to the Graduate School, what should I do as a final check before submitting? Please consult the most commonly encountered errors document before submitting your paper. This can drastically cut down on needed edits to your paper and shorten the approval process significantly.